The Right Stuff for Moving Kansas forward
*collaborative teaming *new lenses for leadership
*a clear sense of identity.

It's an exciting time for education in Kansas as everyone experiences the KESA/redesign process and the changes that are occurring across our state. At the same time, change creates tensions that must be managed. How do we recover from the AYP Hangover and embrace KESA and redesign? Join us for an interactive day of learning that focuses on 3 components: collaborative teaming, leadership & identity. Engage with colleagues who will push your thinking about change and redesign in your district as well as tools you can use tomorrow to foster deeper conversations within your own system.

Toni Prickett is a Kansas educator and an international Training Associate for Thinking Collaborative, which includes Adaptive Schools and Cognitive Coaching. She is currently facilitating work with many Kansas districts and KLN.

Participants will walk away with:

- Greater sense of the what, why and how of collaboration;
- Focus on "levels of learning;"
- Acquire knowledge and skills to create and support change;
- Understand two types of suspension required for conversation;
- Enhance tools and strategies to support skillful collaboration.
- Expand repertoire of practical facilitation tools

How can we promote thinking and teach collaborative skills while tapping individual and collective strengths in ways that lead to success for all?

Leadership is not a role; it is how one thinks and acts. Regardless of your title, YOU are a leader. Building leaders and teacher leaders working collaboratively are critical to success.
